

Melwin Besnard

Programming is something anyone can do with IT skills, but it is difficult to find a programmer who can work on a client's project clearly and neatly.

My passion is to create beautiful, intuitive websites and applications, and to develop elegant solutions to complex problems in web developing. An innovative and passionate software engineer with a unique ability to understand business needs and translate them into development apps. In previous roles as team lead developer, developed strong project management and communication skills.
